50 yards from the German trenches
from "Hearts of the World"
(D. W. Griffith)

Long-range artillery is placed about 10 km behind the front line. These guns fire at advancing enemy troops

Concrete block house for a machine-gun

Reserve trench

Support trench

Front-line trench

Barbed wire: metres deep and an impassable obstacle for any troops able to reach it

Communication trenches allow reserves to be brought forward without exposing them to enemy fire

No Man's Land (the stretch of land between the trenches of the opposing sides)

A deep dug-out. German ones could be 15 m below ground and too well constructed to be damaged by shell fire
